Bankers continue to rely on Holding Companies to strengthen organizations, diversify services

Welcome to the fourth edition of the Bank Holding Company Association's National Directory of Holding Companies. While the combined list of 3,653 institutions represents a 2.7 percent decrease from last year's list, the holding company, or HC, remains a steadfast corporate structure for bankers across the country. Investors typically like them, and investors particularly seem to like multi-bank holding companies which were disproportionately acquired last year. Their numbers dropped to 195 from 218 the year before, a reduction of 10.5 percent.

Although the numbers are declining, the holding company remains an important and valuable business organization structure, offering important benefits to owners, employees and customers. Often, customers don't distinguish between a holding company and a bank, and they don't know whether the wealth management service they enjoy is coming from the bank or the bancorp. That's fine. The important thing is, there are structures that allow creative bankers to efficiently offer all kinds of products and services.

The list also shows an intriguing number of midtier holding companies and ESOPs, which own enough of the bank to be categorized as a distinct holding company. Texas, with 327 holding companies at year-end 2021, leads the country as the state with the most holding companies; Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota each have more than 200, and Missouri has 176. Those states also have the most multi-bank holding companies: Texas has 18, Minnesota has 16 and Iowa has 14.

We are posting this directory, for the first time, on our website so that anyone who wants to see it can do so. Typically, the directory has been popular among holding company executives across the country. Bank consultants, researchers, investors and others with a curiosity about the business of banking I believe will also find this information useful.

If you are a banker, I invite you to consider attending one of our Fall Seminar events. The Bank Holding Company Association is celebrating the organization's 40th anniversary on Oct. 2-3 with our annual seminar in Minneapolis. In addition, we have a special one-day seminar set for Oct. 25 in Dallas focusing on community bank mergers and acquisitions. Please visit our website at www.theBHCA.org for more information and to register.

If you like what you see in this directory, on our website and at our events, please consider joining the BHCA. Contact us at 1-800-813-4754 for more information.
