BANK HOLDING COMPANY ASSOCIATION

MISSION STATEMENT

The Bank Holding Company Association, the premier national organization for bank holding company owners, directors and senior managers, provides education and networking opportunities to those who work in, or serve, the financial services industry. Through seminars, webinars, printed materials and other means, the association supports the vitality of bank holding companies.

OUR ORGANIZATION

The Bank Holding Company Association, founded in 1981, welcomes Members from around the country. Holding companies of all sizes from throughout the Midwest make up a majority of the current membership. Companies that serve bank owners, their holding companies and banks, are welcomed as Associate Members. The BHCA is run by a board of directors and a managing director.

Bank holding companies remain reliable part of evolving financial ecosphere

Thank you for visiting this national online directory of bank holding companies. The Bank Holding Company Association, based in Minneapolis, provides this annual listing because of its belief in holding companies as an important feature of the community banking ecosphere. Holding companies remain a source of innovation in the banking arena, while also providing valuable capital management tools to bank owners.

The figures used to compile this edition are provided by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, which helps us each year with this project. We sincerely appreciate their support and partnership.

With the growing emphasis on digital commerce, banks are engaging in fintech partnerships, research and development, and tech innovation like never before. Regulators also are innovating, utilizing the latest tools to monitor risk and identify potential trouble spots. At the same time, responding to pressure from various constituencies, policymakers are trying to make room for new players. Rules articulating what companies can access accounts at the Federal Reserve are under review; and laws are emerging that will open the door to digital currencies, particularly stablecoin.

Changes to something as important as the banking system need to be undertaken carefully and pragmatically. It might be easy to assess markets as changing quickly, thereby necessitating quick changes to the rules governing banking, but bankers, regulators and lawmakers must resist the temptation to move too quickly, to latch onto the "latest thing," which may prove to be little more than a fad, like shag carpeting. And wherever there is money to be made, bad actors seem to work their way into the cast. While considering the benefits of cryptocurrencies, it is also important to consider the risks, see who's using them, and what exactly they are doing. The State of Minnesota recently outlawed cryptocurrency ATMs, a welcome move as the machines were undoubtedly the focal point of scams aimed at unsophisticated consumers, many of them elderly.

Financial institutions that are subject to regulation and supervision by the traditional banking regulatory agencies, including bank holding companies which are regulated by the Federal Reserve, give consumers confidence that any new services offered have been vetted and tested in such a way that they offer real benefits to the public. Services offered by less-regulated entities, perhaps new to financial services, are less reliable. Consumers don't always think of that. Bankers and consumer advocates should constantly remind people that this country has an elaborate financial regulatory system to protect consumers and that it can be foolish to engage in financial transactions and services outside that system.

If you are reading this in August or September, let me encourage you to click over to the information on this website about our annual Fall Seminar: "Creating Value: Building for the Future," taking place Oct. 5-6, 2026 in the Twin Cities. Consider attending, invite colleagues from your institutions (don't forget directors) and register today!

Thank you very much for your support. If you are not a BHCA member, I invite you to join. Refer to the contact information on this page and reach out to us today!
